RONALD WILSON REAGAN

HCR 3021

Throughout our history, a few great leaders have stood the test of time and continued to influence future generations of Americans. Ronald Reagan stands as one of the most influential presidents of our great nations, touching the hearts and lives of millions. When he finally succumbed to illness on June 5, 2004, the nation mourned the passing of a national hero.

Reagan boldly accepted the helm of a country plaque by disillusionment and inspired a renewed optimism in the weary American people. His defense policies brought about the demise of the Soviet Union, opening the gate to freedom for hundreds of millions of world citizens, and laid the groundwork for our victory in the Gulf War. America overwhelmingly voiced approval of his leadership when 49 of the 50 states reelected him president in 1984.

Thanks to Ronald Reagan's economic policies, our nation flourished in one of the longest economic expansions on American history. His vision of a less obtrusive government was considered revolutionary at the time, Reagan's strong belief in the power and ability if individuals revitalized the American spirit.

Last year 17 state legislative bodies proclaimed Feb. 6 Ronald Reagan Day. In honor of the 96th anniversary of his birth this resolution will help thousands learn of the legacy of our nations 40th President.
