NORTH DAKOTA NETWORK AND SECURITY AUDIT

Mr. Mark Shaw, Technical Manager, Security Operations Branch, ManTech Security and Mission Assurance, Vienna, Virginia, joined the meeting via telephone. He provided information regarding vulnerability assessment and penetration testing of the Information Technology Department. A copy of the information presented is on file in the Legislative Council office. He said during September and October 2009, ManTech Security and Mission Assurance performed a vulnerability assessment and penetration test for the State Auditor's office. He said the assessment and penetration testing consisted of the following five major project tasks:

Project Task	Description
External vulnerability assessment	An external vulnerability assessment is intended to provide an organization with information on the overall security and risk of the network from an external point of view. External assessment procedures focus on performing Internet research, discovering systems connected to the Internet, and probing the system to discover misconfigurations and vulnerabilities.
Internal vulnerability assessment	An internal vulnerability assessment is intended to provide an organization with information on the overall security and risk of the systems and network from an internal point of view. Internal assessment procedures focus on examining systems for vulnerabilities, misconfigurations, and implementation flaws that may expose the system to additional risk.

Project Task	Description
Application security assessment	An application security assessment gives an organization an opportunity to thoroughly and realistically evaluate the security posture of an application and its associated components.
Wireless security assessment	A wireless security assessment seeks to identify unauthorized wireless devices and access points within an organization. It may also be used to verify proper setup and controls of approved wireless configurations.
Penetration testing	Penetration testing is intended to provide an organization with information on the overall security and risk picture of its network from an external or an internal point of view. Penetration testing focuses on gaining access to systems under an organization's control.

Mr. Shaw said vulnerabilities discovered were assigned a risk identifier that was relative to the network or system under test. He said the three risk levels used are defined as follows:

- High risk - A high likelihood of compromise of system-level access exists. If exploited, this vulnerability may allow total control of the system.
- Medium risk - A vulnerability exists that may provide access to critical data or user-level access to a system. This vulnerability may lead to further exploitation.
- Low risk - A vulnerability exists that may disclose information but does not directly lead to the exploitation of a system.

Mr. Shaw provided the following summary of the findings and recommendations:

Project Task	Findings	Recommendations
External vulnerability assessment	Overall, 109 systems at state agencies or organizations were found to have at least one vulnerability that would provide an external attacker with a possible attack vector that could lead to the compromise of the state's network from the Internet. There were 14 unique vulnerability findings, including 9 high-risk, 3 medium-risk, and 2 low-risk.	Filter inbound access to all state systems

Project Task	Findings	Recommendations
Internal vulnerability assessment	Overall, 440 systems were found to have at least one vulnerability that would provide an attacker with a possible attack vector that could lead to the compromise of the state's network and sensitive information. There were 46 unique vulnerability findings, including 23 high-risk, 19 medium-risk, and 4 low-risk.	Segment public facing servers from internal network Internal segregation of critical servers and development systems Implement outbound access control Require use of encrypted protocols for remote management
Application security assessment	The applications assessed were: Game and Fish Department online services, Department of Transportation driver's license online services, criminal justice information sharing system, and the Job Service North Dakota unemployment insurance Internet claim entry. There were eight unique vulnerability findings, including four high-risk, two medium-risk, and two low-risk.	None
Wireless security assessment	The following locations were assessed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • State Capitol, 600 East Boulevard Avenue • Department of Transportation, 608 East Boulevard Avenue • State Water Commission, 900 East Boulevard Avenue • Bank of North Dakota, 1200 Memorial Highway No high-, medium-, or low-risk vulnerabilities were identified during the assessment of these locations.	None
Penetration testing	The test team was able to gain full administrative control of 14 systems. In addition, using social engineering techniques, the test team was very successful in its attempts to gain user account credentials and showed the susceptibility of users to execute malicious content downloaded from the Internet or access unknown media on their local systems.	None

Mr. Shaw said the findings are typical of organizations with an enterprise the size of the state of North Dakota. He said these results show an improvement over the assessment conducted in 2007.

OTHER REPORTS

Mr. Gordy Smith, Audit Manager, Performance Audit Section, State Auditor's office, presented information regarding the State Auditor's authority relating to audits or reviews of entities and component units of the North Dakota University System. A copy of the information presented is on file in the Legislative Council office. He said component units are legally separate organizations for which the elected officials of a primary government are financially responsible. According to governmental accounting standards, he said, a component unit can be an organization for which the nature and significance of the relationship with a primary government are such that exclusion of the component unit would cause the reporting entity's financial statements to be misleading or incomplete. He said component units that are grouped together for inclusion in the primary government's financial statements are referred to as "blended" component units, and component units that are required to be presented separately in the financial statements are referred to as "discretely presented" component units.

Mr. G. Smith said government accounting standards provide that organizations that are legally separate, tax-exempt entities that meet the following requirements should be discretely presented component units:

1. The economic resources received or held by the separate organization are entirely or almost entirely for the direct benefit of the primary government, its component units, or its constituents.

2. The primary government or its component units is entitled to or has the ability to otherwise access a majority of the economic resources received or held by the separate organization.
3. The economic resources received or held by the individual organization that the primary government or its component units is entitled to or has the ability to otherwise access are significant to that primary government.

Mr. G. Smith said there are currently 32 component units associated with the North Dakota University System, including the North Dakota State University Technology Park, the University of North Dakota Aerospace Foundation, and various alumni foundations.

Mr. G. Smith said the State Auditor has limited authority to audit or review the records of the component units. He said the authority to examine the books and accounts of component units is only to the extent of their involvement with the state government agencies and institutions.

STUDY OF REQUIREMENTS FOR POLITICAL SUBDIVISION AUDITS

Mr. G. Smith presented information regarding the length of time required to review audits submitted by private firms. A copy of the information presented is on file in the Legislative Council office. He said the State Auditor's office annually reviews approximately 300 political subdivision audit reports submitted by public accounting firms.
