Minutes:

CHAIRMAN COOK opened the hearing on SB 2161. All Senators (6) were present. SB 2161 relates to the regulation of mixed fighting style competitions.

Testimony in support of SB 2161

SENATOR JUDY LEE introduced SB 2161. (See attached testimony)

Chris Nelson, West Fargo appeared in support of SB 2161. Mr Nelson explained mixed martial arts. The sport takes place in a boxing ring or some events take place in an octagon cage type arena. The rules are there are punching, kicking, just like kick boxing except you incorporate grappling into it. It is a professional sport. The people that fight are very well trained and prepare for the fight. One of the reasons for being well trained is that a lot of places that you fight, like Indian reservations, Minnesota, South Dakota, there are no regulations, so there is no one looking out for you. This is one of the reasons he would like to see the sport regulated. To make sure there is medical attention there, a referee that knows what is going on so he can stop the fight.

He thinks it would be beneficial for North Dakota to have this sport. It would increase interest in the martial arts and it would bring in money like any other event or concert.

SENATOR COOK asked if you could step in a ring with two participants and practice martial arts legally in North Dakota.

Chris Nelson answered that it is not legal in North Dakota. On the reservation they are their own independent nation so they can do what ever they want as long as the tribal council allows it. They would dictate the rules.

Al Jaeger, Secretary of State and State Athletic Director (See attached testimony)

Ken Sorensen, Bismarck ND, Assistant Attorney General, appeared on his own with a concern about the way the definition is written for mixed fighting style competition including all martial arts. He feels the definition needs clarification.

Minutes:

SENATOR COOK called the committee to order for discussion on SB 2161

SENATOR COOK asked for questions on the bill.

SENATOR JUDY LEE has confidence in the testimony of Mr. Gummering. The idea that they are trying to promote martial arts fighting to be an honorable sport by doing it legally and to make sure it is done safely and within perimeters is good. If there is a way that it can be done, she would like to have the committee move forward on the bill. She does not want the Secretary of State to have any issues with the bill. She felt there needs to be an amendment.

SENATOR COOK asked if Senator J Lee would talk with Mr Jaeger.

SENATOR J LEE said she would be glad to do that.

The bill will be held for further discussion.

SENATOR COOK adjourned the meeting.

CHAIRMAN COOK called the committee of order. All were in attendance.

Al Jaeger, Secretary of State, explained the amendments to SB 2161. (See attachment)

He used some information from Nevada. A young man who is into the martial arts and works for the attorneys generals office, also offered some information.

SENATOR COOK asked if the change from 1% to within 5% applied to boxing also.

Mr. Jaeger replied that it did not. There would have to be a hearing process to let the chapter know to change boxing percentage.

Mr. Jaeger said if the bill gets passed they would have a vehicle to regulate martial arts with the amendments.

SENATOR JUDY LEE moved amendments to SB 2161 be approved.

SENATOR JUDY LEE moved a DO PASS as Amendment on SB 2161.

SENATOR POLOVITZ seconded the motion.

Discussion:

SENATOR JUDY LEE said she was not a fan of violent sports, and doesn't care for those kind of sports personally but knowing Jeff Gummeringer for twenty years or more she is convinced that their goal is to raise the standards so that they don't have a free for all. Because of that I introduced the bill and supported it with the Secretary of States help in trying to put together rules that will make sure that it is safe and that the fight is medically attended and all those things. I think there is an important differentiation between supporting the concept of some of these activities and whether or not we like them. She thinks we have responsibility to regulate something that might be harmful, so that we try to avoid that as we have for boxing.

SENATOR COOK asked Senator Lee if the bill was passed , would it have any effect on this type of activity on Indian Reservations.

SENATOR JUDY LEE replied her hope would be to regulate this activity also.

SENATOR COOK said the amendments improve the bill.

SENATOR CHRISTENSON agreed with Senator Judy Lee in many ways. The best of the worst worlds is to try and regulate something that is not particularly appealing. The other side of that argument and the way Senator Christenson stands on it is that simply by sanctioning any kind of regulation, we are in effect putting a legislative stamp of approval on it. Sanctioning it in a way that is perhaps so much legal as it is moral and ethical in the community. She will not go for a Do Pass.

FISCAL NOTE
 Requested by Legislative Council
 01/03/2003

Bill/Resolution No.: SB 2161

1A. State fiscal effect: Identify the state fiscal effect and the fiscal effect on agency appropriations compared to funding levels and appropriations anticipated under current law.

	2001-2003 Biennium		2003-2005 Biennium		2005-2007 Biennium
	General Fund	Other Funds	General Fund	Other Funds	General Fund	Other Funds
Revenues	$0	$0	$0	$0	$0	$0
Expenditures	$0	$0	$7,000	$0	$0	$0
Appropriations	$0	$0	$0	$0	$0	$0

1B. County, city, and school district fiscal effect: Identify the fiscal effect on the appropriate political subdivision.

2001-2003 Biennium			2003-2005 Biennium			2005-2007 Biennium
Counties	Cities	School Districts	Counties	Cities	School Districts	Counties	Cities	School Districts

2. Narrative: Identify the aspects of the measure which cause fiscal impact and include any comments relevant to your analysis.

Mixed fighting styles is a relatively new competition that has evolved from ultimate fighting type of competition (fight-to-the-death format with few rules) that is currently prohibited by rule in North Dakota. New Jersey and Nevada were the first states in 2001 to establish rules. Therefore, the mixed fighting style of competition is very new with few states having had experience and a track record as to the regulation of these types of events.

3. State fiscal effect detail: For information shown under state fiscal effect in 1A, please:

A. Revenues: Explain the revenue amounts. Provide detail, when appropriate, for each revenue type and fund affected and any amounts included in the executive budget.

It is not known what type of revenue might be generated if this bill became law or how often these events might be held. The only "mixed martial arts" events to date that have been held in North Dakota have been on Indian reservations, which, because of sovereign immunity issues, are not subject to the state's rules. We have no information as to how well those events have been attended.

B. Expenditures: Explain the expenditure amounts. Provide detail, when appropriate, for each agency, line item, and fund affected and the number of FTE positions affected.

Initially, the agency would need to use its general fund appropriation to provide the funding to develop the rules, procedures, and programming required for the regulation of mixed fighting styles. The agency estimates that the cost of the programming would be approximately $4,000 and the cost to promulgate the rules, i.e., advertising, research, and staff time, would be approximately $3,000.

C. Appropriations: Explain the appropriation amounts. Provide detail, when appropriate, of the effect on the biennial appropriation for each agency and fund affected and any amounts included in the executive budget. Indicate the relationship between the amounts shown for expenditures and appropriations.

To regulate the sport of boxing, the athletic commissioner has the use of a special fund, which has a continuing appropriation. This fund usually contains only a minimum balance of available funds to cover the expenses incurred by the athletic commission.

Therefore, the agency will request a legislative "statement of intent" that the rules established for mixed fighting style competition will include a fee structure, which will adequately cover all of the expenses associated with the regulation of mixed fighting style competitions, i.e., without drawing on those revenues generated by boxing and without any additional support (besides initial setup) from the agency's general fund appropriation.

SB 2161
Political Subdivisions Committee
January 16, 2003

SB 2161 was introduced at the request of a constituent who is a participant in martial arts training and who would like to see ND permitted to host mixed martial arts competitions.

It will come as no surprise to you that I am not an expert in mixed martial arts. But the daughter of one of my work colleagues participates in these events in the Minneapolis area and enjoys them very much.

The bill asks that the Secretary of State establish rules which will regulate such events, much as the boxing commission does for its events.

The cost would have to be covered by fees which participants would pay. The Secretary of State's office has been working on an estimate of those costs, and I am support any amendment which would clarify that it should not be a burden to his office.

I ask the committee to support the establishment of a commission to regulate mixed fighting style competitions in a manner that will guarantee that safety and sportsmanship is a part of the rules and that is not an additional cost to the Secretary of State's office.

SECRETARY OF STATE

STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA
800 EAST BOULEVARD AVENUE DEPT 108
BISMARCK ND 58505-0500

January 16, 2003

TO: Senator Cook, Chairman, and Members of the Senate Political Subdivisions Committee

FR: Al Jaeger, Secretary of State

RE: SB 2161 - Mixed fighting styles

Mixed fighting styles, also known as Mixed Martial Arts, is a relatively new event in the area of regulation for states and athletic (boxing) commissions. It also has been a topic of discussion at a regional meeting of the Association of Boxing Commissions, held last October in Omaha, which a member of the Athletic Commission, my Director of Licensing, and I attended.

Only a handful of states currently regulate these events. As well, a few states specifically prohibit these types of events. Currently, Subsection 4 of Section 72-02.2-01.1-04 of the North Dakota Administrative Rules prohibits, "Any barroom type brawls, "so you think you're tough" type contests, roughneck type matches, or matches of a similar character or nature if any contestant receives remuneration directly or indirectly whether or not a contestant has prior organized amateur or professional training." This regulation does not apply to events of this type that are held on reservations, which is considered sovereign territory.

Based on information provided to us, the mixed fighting style of competition has evolved from the types of events just described and prohibited by our rules. In order to provide a historical account of its evolution, I have attached an article that was published on Multichannel News last October.

My two major concerns related to the inclusion of fixing fighting styles under the jurisdiction of the Athletic Commissioner are related to the financial and time commitment. Currently, the expense of administering boxing is covered by a continuing appropriation authorized by N.D.C.C. § 53-01-09. Today, that account has a balance of $828.24. These funds are used to pay for the expenses of the members of the Athletic Advisory Board. The travel and lodging expense for my staff and I, as well as the wages for my staff, is paid for by the agency's general fund appropriation. Combined, approximately $1,000 to $1,500 is expended to regulate each boxing event that is held outside the immediate area.

If this bill passes, I am not prepared to cover any of the expenses related to its regulation from the agency's general fund appropriation. Therefore, I respectfully request that the committee change page 2, line 18, from one to five. And, with a statement of Intent (or whatever is appropriate) make it clear that the Secretary of State is to promulgate rules covering mixed fighting styles that provide for an adequate source of revenue to pay for all of the expenses of regulation associated with mixed fighting style competitions.

One of the goals of the proponents of this bill, many others, and me is that these particular competitive events be conducted in such a manner that assures, as much as possible, the safety of the participants. Therefore, it will take time to research the existing regulations of other states, which already have regulations in place. This type of competition is an unknown and we will want to do it right if it is to take place in North Dakota. For your review, I have also attached an excerpt from Nevada's rules related to this type of competition.

Jury Still Out on UFC's Facelift

By R. Thomas Umstead
Multichannel News

A decade after the Ultimate Fighting Championship mixed martial arts franchise burst on the pay-per-view sports scene — amid controversy and eventual condemnation from cable operators — a new, more rules-dominated version is quietly trying to recapture some of the sport's old PPV glory.

With six events a year — including its 40th iteration in November — and ongoing negotiations for a new television deal, UFC executives are hoping to once again become a major player in the PPV category.

Initially launched by Semaphore Entertainment Group in November 1992, the UFC, which touts a no-holds barred, fight-to-the death format with very few rules, quickly became an immediate PPV hit in terms of buy-rate — often rivaling more established franchises like boxing and professional wrestling.

"It was a novelty that generated a lot of fanfare and media interest," said TVN Entertainment Inc. senior vice president of PPV and sports programming Michael Klein.

But the franchise ran into political trouble in 1997, when the New York State Athletic Commission became the first of several regulators to ban UFC events due to excessive violence, even though none of the fighters had ever been seriously hurt.

Subsequently, operators, one by one, refused to offer UFC. Eventually, In Demand LLC — then called Viewer's Choice — dropped the sport altogether.

"The early owners really did the franchise a disservice because they marketed the extreme angle too much, to the point that operators began to worry about community pressure," said Klein, who, as the programming executive at Viewer's Choice, made the decision to pull the plug on the UFC.

For several years, the UFC could only be seen on direct-broadcast satellite services. But Nevada-based, independently owned Zuffa LLC bought the franchise from SEG in January 2001 and totally revamped the organization.

Once a renegade outfit, the UFC is now billed as a leading mixed martial-arts association in which athletes combine fighting techniques such as jujitsu, judo, karate, boxing, kickboxing and wrestling.

Self policing

The new UFC now adheres to a "stringent" set of rules, which include commission-approved gloves, weight classes and mandatory drug testing.

To make the competition even more uniform, only commission-approved MMA shorts and kickboxing trunks are allowed in the ring.

Yet even with the changes, UFC president Dana White said the organization initially had a difficult time shedding its no-holds-barred image. The major breakthrough came during the summer of 2001, when two powerful and influential regulators — the New Jersey Athletic Commission and Nevada Athletic Commission — both recognized the UFC as a legitimate sport.

The Louisiana and Florida athletic commissions also sanction UFC events. Another sign that the sport is gaining legitimacy: Las Vegas casinos are taking lines on the organization's Nov. 22 PPV event, according to White.

Within nine months of its revamping, In Demand began carrying the new and improved UFC franchise.

"We were very pleased with a lot of the moves that the company made to nurture its growth," In Demand senior vice president of programming development Dan York said.

To further boost awareness, UFC hired PPV marketing firm Team Services to tout its product to cable operators.

While UFC's five PPV events in 2002 have performed decently — averaging from 50,000 to 60,000 buys, Team said — the company hopes to break the 100,000 mark within the next year.

Team Services president Bonnie Werth admits the organization faces an uphill battle to shed its outlaw brand within the industry, adding that many operators don't even know the UFC is back on pay-per-view.

"Zuffa has worked hard to create rules and regulations to give it more credibility and viability," Werth said. "The challenge is to build mixed martial arts as a legitimate sport and to build UFC as the premiere mixed martial arts organization in the process."

While it's still too early to judge the PPV appeal of the new UFC, Millenium Digital Media senior vice president of marketing and programming Peter Smith said the more sanitized version certainly makes it easier for the MSO to distribute the events.

"We have a duty to our customers to provide responsible programming," Smith said. "The fact that the UFC is a more orderly event makes it easier for us to sell."

Another operator executive who wished to remain anonymous added that he'd trade a few less buys for the lack of controversy that the new UFC garners.

"The numbers that we've seen in the new format have been respectable, but there's certainly less controversy surrounding the event," the executive said. "I can see it becoming a consistent source of [PPV] revenue for us."

Seeking viewers

In order to achieve its goals, the UFC will have to market to an audience that is decidedly different from those that found its former form appealing.

Instead of the young, predominantly male audience drawn to popular "sports-entertainment" entities like World Wrestling Entertainment, White said the UFC's audience is the true sports fan — a bit older and interested in competitive pursuits like boxing and collegiate and Olympic wrestling.

"The people who purchase our events are boxing fans and combat fans," White said. "The WWE fans are more into the soap-opera aspect of the event."

Added Werth: "Those who really wanted the blood sport of the old UFC are not our audience. I certainly expect to capture the imagination of the boxing fan."

UFC has already attempted to reach out to sports fans by airing two events nationally on Fox Sports Net last August — the first time the organization has appeared on television outside of PPV.

The shows performed well, averaging around a 0.8 between them, and generating higher ratings than FSN's regularly scheduled boxing series.

The organization also received top billing during a summer episode of FSN's sports-talk show The Best Damn Sports Show Period.

UFC wants to have a network distribution deal in place by first-quarter 2003 to supplement its PPV shows, said White.

"We're talking to two or three networks about a television deal and we hope to have one in place by March," said White, although he refused to reveal specific details. "We have to get our guys on free TV and build up their awareness."

Fox Sports Net confirmed that is considering an expanded role with the UFC.

"We were happy with the results and we're evaluating what we're going to do in 2003," Fox Sports Net director of media relations Tom Chiappetta said. "We know there's an audience out there."

Going beyond cable

The organization also plans to build awareness for what it considers its highly skilled athletes through other non-cable ventures, White said.

UFC has already launched a line of video games that have become strong sellers on both the Microsoft Corp.'s Xbox and Sony Corp.'s PlayStation consoles, he said. Several UFC stars will also appear in an upcoming film starring international martial arts star Jet Li.

"Right now, we have seven or eight guys that we've determined could be breakout stars," White said. Those names include Tito Ortiz, Ricco Rodriguez and Matt Hughes.

Given its ambitious plans, In Demand's York believes the organization has a tremendous amount of upside, which will ultimately benefit the cable industry.

"The product is far more sophisticated than it was during its first incarnation," he said. "The first UFC was like Toughman, but this version is much more polished and there's no doubt that if it stays the course, it can become a major PPV player again."
