OCCUPATIONAL AND PROFESSIONAL LICENSING BOARDS OF NORTH DAKOTA AND NEIGHBORING STATES

INTRODUCTION

This memorandum provides information regarding occupational and professional licensing boards in South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Minnesota, and North Dakota. The basic information sought from each of the states was for a list of each of the state's occupational and professional licensing boards, the occupations licensed by each of the boards, and the number of professionals licensed by each of the boards. In addition, to the extent the information was available, information was gathered regarding the structure of the licensing system in each of the states.

SOUTH DAKOTA

South Dakota law provides for 22 professional licensing boards. Although the boards are under the Department of Commerce and Regulation Division of Professional and Occupational Licensing, each board is freestanding. The Division of Professional and Occupational Licensing receives annual reports from each board and creates an annual report that includes information regarding each board's total revenues, expenditures, and cash balances; the number and types of licenses issued; statistics regarding examinations, continuing education, and the number of board employees; statistics regarding complaints received, investigated, and resolved; and statistics regarding hearings and outcomes. A copy of the preliminary annual report for 2001 is attached as an appendix. Although lawyers and teachers are licensed in South Dakota, their licensing boards are not included under the Department of Commerce.

The following is a list of South Dakota professional licensing boards, including the number of licensees and the occupations licensed by the boards in fiscal year 2001:

MINNESOTA

Minnesota law generally classifies licensing boards as health-related and non-health-related. In addition to the boards, the following seven state departments regulate occupations:

1. Department of Health;
2. Department of Commerce;
3. Department of Administration;
4. Department of Agriculture;
5. Department of Labor and Industry;
6. Pollution Control Agency; and
7. Department of Public Safety.

Each of the health-related boards has its own practice act and is governed by a board of directors appointed by the Governor. Although each of these boards has at least two public members, the remainder of the boards' memberships are predominately composed of members of the professions being regulated. The health-related boards are independent agencies; however, their offices are located at the same address and they jointly operate an administrative services unit that carries out certain administrative functions. The following are Minnesota's health-related licensing boards (1998 figures):

1. Chiropractic Examiners Board - 1,764
2. Dentistry Board
  - a. Hygienist - 3,558
